GREEK COOKIES

from Maria Karamolegou

Athens, October 2012

A SMALL COOKIE -KOULOURLAKI, A LONG HISTORY

- Cookies are included in the Mediterranean diet with its roots lost in the depths of history.
- The first written recipe we have, can be traced back to Ancient Egyptian times.
- During the Minoan period in Crete we find crispy sweets in the form of snake, a symbol which has always been known for its therapeutic powers in medicine.
- The Minoans consumed these cookies -koulourakia to keep healthy and the very same form has been preserved until contemporary times and in fact is widely spread in Greece.
- Cookies are a nutritious habit, intricately linked with our tradition, memories and civilization.

THE FAMILY STORY OF MARIA KARAMOLEGOS

- In the early 50's, Elias Karamolegos decided to open a bakery in Santorini, using his family recipes. His two children Manolis and Maria grew up helping their parents at the bakery while at the same time experiencing the mystagogue of learning the magical world of dough making and the creation of unique tastes based on the traditions of the island.
- Maria, a small girl, relished watching her mother kneading, enriching the dough with flavours and aromatic herbs and forming them into small cookies. "I was entranced by the fact that my mother literally transformed the most simple ingredients found in our kitchen to the most palatable and aromatic cookies I have ever tasted until today".
- In 1956, due to a devastating earthquake of 7.5 Richter in Santorini, they were forced to make a fresh start, by opening a bakery in Athens.
- By 1984 the bakery has grown into a state-of-the-art industry in the industrial zone of Athens and still growing.

THE FAMILY STORY OF MARIA KARAMOLEGOS

- For many years, Maria worked alongside her brother and managed to create one of the leading baking industries, yet she never forgot her great love for cookie making and their special tastes.
- That was the main reason that made her turn back to this production and focus on one and only purpose. To produce home-made style cookies, without preservatives and promote them to the market so that their aromas fill each and every house in the world.
